SINGULAR CLAUSE IN A WILL.—The will of Geo. T. Williamson (whose death took place not long since in Europe) was admitted to probate yester day. CH. S. Lewis, a citizen of McCracken all property he gives to his wife (to divide, if she thinks proper, with any of her children) in lieu of dower. The will then proceeds: "To James Taylor, of Newport, I bequeath my scorn and contempt, died of consumption a few days ago." The Coat of Mail Slander.

We understand that William Newton was th witness upon whose testimony the Grand Jury of Hawesville made out their infamous report as to further that Newton did not tell the jury that he saw the coat of mail, but said that he felt it. Against the possibility of his recognizing such a thing by the sense of touch, stands the fact that A. M. Mayo, a personal enemy of Lowe, searched him in the presence of his assailants, and found nothing of the kind on him. It is said, also, that Judge Mayhall, who shot at Lowe with his rifle, on Tuesday, when it would have been impossible for Lowe to have concealed the coat of mail. Other persons examined the clothes of Lowe and found the marks of no deadly balls upon them except those fired by the assassins in the jail. His vest had but one mark upon it, and that was a ball entering the opening at the front and passing out at the opening for the left arm. The coat of mail story is a base and slanderous lie, started by the murderers of Lowe to palliate, in some degree, the damning deed of his assassination. He is dead, and can't speak for himself, but it is the duty of all honest men to shield his memory from such a slander. Let those who are guilty of his blood share the full penalty of the most cowardly comes chronic—stiffens the joints, contracts the and brutal atrocity that has ever disgraced th und in others affected a decided cure.

This is a purely vegetable compound, prepared on strictly scientific principles, after the manner of the relebrated Holland Professor, Boerhave. Because of its great success in most of the European States, its introduction in the U. S. was intended more especially for those of our fatherland scattered here and there over the face of this mighty country. Meeting with great success among them I now offer it ot the Amercian public, knowing that its truly wonderful medisinal virtues must be acknowledged.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the continous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instantaneous in effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickening every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and in fact, infusing new health and vigor in the system.

NOTICE—Whoever expects to find this a beverage will be disappointed; but to the sick, weak and low spirited, it will prove a grateful aromatic cordial, possessed of singular remedial properties.

bate on the Kansas Restriction—Position of Men Defined!

On the 24th February the debate in the United States Senate turned on the following amendment, offered by Mr. Hale, to the General Appropriation bill:

Sec. - . And be it further enacted, That the first section of the act entitled "An act for the admission of the State of Kansas into the Union, approved May 4, 1858, be, and the same is hereby ended by striking out the following words, viz Whenever it is ascertained, by a census duly and legally taken, that the population of said Territory equals or exceeds the ratio of representation required for the members of the House of Representatives in the Congress of the United States;" which worls are hereby repealed.

THE KANSAS RESTRICTION. At one o'clock the General Appropriation Bill

Mr. Seward was surprised at the opposition of Senators to this amendment. Congress had a caceded to the request of Kansas to be admitted into the Union, so far as to consent that she should come in if she would accept the Lecompton Constitution, without any condition or reservation regarding the number of her people. On the other hand, Congress had decided that if she rejected that constitutions, she should remain outside of the Union until she should have a population of 93, 420, the constitutions she should remain outside of the Union until she should have a population of 93, 420, the constitutions he could prefer would make Kansas a slave State, and any other constitution she could prefer would make her a free State. It was, therefore, a discrimination by Congress in favor of slavery, and against freedom. This discrimination was asserted to be the result of a policy excluding every State, slave or free, of whatever politics, from admission into the Union unless it arrived at a population of 93, 420. But that policy had been abandoned in the admission of Oregon with an unascertained population, so that the discrimination against Kansas has been embit ered, marked, and distinguished by admitting a Democratic State without regard to pepulation, excluding Kansas and keeping her in a state of subjugation to the Federal Government because her politics are different.

He was glad, therefore, to have an opportunity again to vote against all such discriminations. He was glad to hear so many Senators declare that that condition was not obligatory upon Congress, and that they would now give Kansas at least a fair hearing if she applied for admission. It showed that they would now give Kansas at least a fair hearing if she applied for admission. It showed that they would now give Kansas at least a fair hearing if she applied for admission. It showed that they would now give Kansas at least a fair hearing if she applied for admission. It showed that they would now give Kansas at least a fair hearing if she applied for ad out regard to stipulation as to the past, and if hereafter Texas should be divided into four States, and all should apply as free States, he be-lieved they would be admitted.

Mr Brown had always been opposed to admiting new States until they possessed population enough for at least one Representative. In order to ascertain that, it was necessary that a census should be taken. But this question had a very important bearing upon the next Presidential contest. Whether the Republican party or the Democratic party was to succeed in the elec

They could appeal to the Supreme Court. That was the doctrine of non intervention as it was understood when the Nebraska bill was passed. The constitution never gave them rights and defield them means to protect and defend those rights. them means to protect and defend those rights.

The decision of the Supreme Court was therefore virtually that they had a right to call upon somebody for the protection of their slaves in the Territories. Upon whom should they call? Under the doctrine of non-intervention they must first call upon the Territorial Legislature, and if that refused adequate protection they must come to determine the continuous content of the same of the content as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine as well as they used to, but that doctrine had long been the fundamental law of the Democratic party, and every one who voted for the Kansas-Ne-braska bill voted to confirm it as such. Suppose the commercial marine of the North was not protected by law, would not Northern statesmen appeal to the Constitution and its guarantees? Yet if the South came here with a bill asking for protection for slave property in the Territories, the party of the North would take opposite ground, and seek to abolish slavery in the Territories. He would not be content to take less protection for slave property than was accorded to the commercial marine entry than was accorded to the commercial marine. erty than was accorded to the commercial marine of the North. The threat that if they asked for protection for slave property, the North would seek to pass abolition laws, passed him as idle wind. It was an appeal to the fears of the South laws, or a distort property and the referror to take and hold saves in the Perritories as often represented as the property. They could hold no property without a law for it, and Congress would not interfere to protect slaves any more than any other property. He dissented from the position of the Senator from Illinois, (Mr. Douglas,) that the Territories have the right to exclude slavery. That was carrying the doctrine of non-intervention too far. The Constitution, unaided by legislation, give them only the right to protection, but did not give them protection itself; that must be according to the comparison of the compar corded by Congress.

came up as unfinished business, the question being on the amendment offered by Mr. Hale repealing the Kansas restriction.

Mr. Stuart regretted exceedingly that this subject had been introduced, but as it had been introduced, he would vote for the repeal. He had intended to object to the appropriation for taking the census of Kansas, because he thought that, in the present state of things, no proceeding on the part of the United States Government to take the census of Kansas would eventuate in good.

Mr. Seward was surprised at the opposition of Senators to this amendment. Congress had acceded to the request of Kansas to be admitted into the Union, so far as to consent that she should come in if she would accept the Lecomption Consenses and the states under the Dred Scott decision. Mr. Brown said States had sovereign power to establish or abolish slavery. He had no doubt, if the case supposed should ever arise, the Supreme Court would render a wise decision. He was not able to foreshadow what that decision would be.

Mr. Douglas felt it incumbent upon him to repy to some of the points presented by the genterm of the proposition of Senators to this amendment. Mr. Douglas felt it incumbent upon him to repy to some of the points presented by the genterm of the Drid Roman from Mississippi, and should do so with candor and frankness. He had no desire to cheat or be cheated. To a certain extent the Senator and himself agreed; but from that point the divergence grew wider and wider. Under the

He would rather settle one sound principle than secure all the spots of the doministration. He wanted, in the coming contest, neither to cheat nor to be cheated; and as this precise question of Kansas was to have an important bearing upon that election, he desired to express his views freely and frankly, and would call upon other Senators, especially Northern bearing upon that election, he desired to express his views freely and frankly, and would call upon other Senators, especially Northern bearing upon that election, and the question of the constitution of a principle and the property of the liquor law; this tribunal was not the one to decide by the courts.

The Senator from Illinois seemed to consider that Congress had irrevocably parted with power to that people which Congress did not itself possess. Mr. Davis wanted to ask whether, when the Supreme Court has decided that the right to hold slaves in the Territories is a constitutional right, the Senator from Illinois would be willing to intervene to maintain that decision.

Mr. Broderick desired to say that he fully agreed to every thing that had been said by the Senators from Illinois (Mr. Douglas) and from Ohio, (Mr. Pugh,) and hoped every Northern Senator, at least, would be compelled to define his position. He was surprised at the interpretation of the Nebraska bill given by his colleague; for the Democratic party in California had interpreted it in accordance with the views of the Senator from Illinois, namely, that the Kansas-Nebraska bill made a discrimination in favor of freedom rather than of slavery.

Mr. Gwin denied that such had been the interpretation In California. No such interpretation had ever been put upon it any where previous to the recent canvass in Illinois. He understood that the policy of the Administration was fully indorsed by the Democracy of California.

Mr. Stuart said they ought to be engaged in regular legislation. This debate had opened the whole subject of the political complexion of the Democratic party, and he intended to follow it up. Mr. Hale desired to respond to the appeal of the Senator from North Carolina to come back from speech-making to business. The question was this: He found an act of the last Congress directly in opposition to a treaty stipulation with He had a right to expect that the Sen ate would repeal the law at once, and little did he think it would wake up such a volley of Demo cratic thunder. He denied that slaves were regnized as property by the Constitution of the United States, and contended that the only decision in the Dred Scott case, was that Dred Scott could not come into court. He reviewed the opinion of Judge Taney and his associates.

The Democracy could not have been broken down in the North if the Northern Democrats had been true to their professions. He was unable to find any thing in the Constitution protecting slavery in the Territories which would not apply to the States, and the Washington Union apply to the States, and the Washington Union had argued soon after the Dred Scott decision that such was its effect. He referred to the jane wet-well Bridge, ort Ky. P. H. POOR,

The Senator had based his argument upon the idea that there was a people in the Territories. There were inhabitants, but not a people in Territories. Constitution was as supreme in Illinois, or any other State, as in the Territories. Suppose the Dred Scott decision should be reversed about a break of the Senator from Missouri. If they would carry out the Democratic principle of non-intervention, whether in regard to slaves or any other property, every thing would go on smoothly; otherwise they must argue to differ wise they must agree to differ.

The Senate will meet to-morrow at 2 o'clock. and will then formally close the present session. It is not expected that there will be a quorum present. The Supreme Circuit, and Criminal Courts have adjourned till Friday in order to attend Postmaster General Brown's funeral on tomorrow atternoon.

Orders have been issued to public officers throughout the country to pay appropriate tributes of respect customary on the death of such an executive officer of the government.

After the doors were opened the Vice President retired from the chair, and, on motion of Mr. Bright, of Ind., it was ordered that Mr. Fitzpatrick, of Ala., be President pro tem. of the Senate.

A message was received from the President announcing the death of Postmaster General Brown.

The pressure says. The death of this idia. The message says: The death of this distinguished public officer, especially at the present moment, when his eminent services were so much needed, is a great loss to the country. His hon-esty and indefatigable exertions in the discharge of his high duties, as well as his benevolent heart and kind deportment, endeared him to all who approached him. Submitting to the will of Divine Providence, as the President does, he adds, that he will ever cherish the memory of the deceased with affectionate regard. Mr. Nicholson, of Tennessee, said this sad in-telligence justified the propriety of some action on the part of the Senate, expressive of their deep sense of the public loss sustained by the late Postmaster General. He had known him well in all his public relations to the country for more than 20 years, and had been cosely associated with him in the walks of private life. He could, therefore, fully appreciate his services as a public man, as well as his generous and noble qualities. After pronouncing a eulogy on the deceased, he submitted a series of resolutions expressive of deep regret at this publicles. deep regret at this public loss, that the Senate will attend the funeral, and that a committee be appointed to make arrangements for the same; that the Senate go into mourning for 30 days; that a copy of the resolutions be communicated to the President, and, as a further mark of respect, that the Senate now adjourn. Adopted.

Previous to the adjournment, Messrs. Rice, of Minnesota, and Foot, of Vermont, were appoint to wait on the President and inform him that if he has no further business to communicate, the Senate is ready to close its session.

WASHINGTON, March 10 .- The Postmaster General's remains lay in state this morning in the east room of the President's house, and crowds thronged thither. The services commenced at noon. The funeral address was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Granbury, of the Southern Methodist tervention on the subject of slavery in the Terri- Church. The President, his Cabinet, distinguish tories? The recent defection from the party at the North was attributable, not to any hostility Government, the relatives of the deceased and to the creed of the party, but to Southern men who advocated their extreme opinions, and put corps, who were in full court dress.

From Dr. James M. Jarrett, of the New York Lung Infirmary.

MY connection for the past eight years with the a twelve years' course of steady devotion to the Cure of Pulmonary Consumption and its kindred diseases, together with my unrivalled opportunities and advantage of pathological research—aided not a little by a perfect system of Medical Inhalation—has enabled me to arrive at a decisive, direct, and successful course of treatment for the positive and radical cure of all diseases of the Throat, Lungs, and Air-Passages. By Inhalation, the vapor and curative properties of medicines are directly addressed to the diseased organs and the integument. I do not advise the use of Medical Inhalation of any kind, to the exclusion of general treatment; and although I consider it a useful adjuvant in the proper management of those fearful and often fatal diseases, yet I deem it very necessary that each patient should have the benefit of both general and local arcatment. The success of my treatment in the above diseases, and the high character of the Instination over which I have so long had the honor to preside, are too well known to need any eulogy or comment from me. At the solicitation of many private and professional friends, through whose philanthropic aid the above charity has been long and liberally supported, and after due consideration, I have concluded to make such arrangements as will bring the benefits of my experience and treatment within the reach of all, and not confine myself, as heretofore, to those only who entered the Infirmary, or who were able to visit me at my office. Hoping within the reach of all, and not confine myself, as heretofore, to those only who entered the Infirmary, or who were able to visit me at my office. Hoping therefore that the arrangement will give entire satisfaction, both to my professional brethren and the public, I would respectfully announce, in conclusion, that I can now be consulted personally or by letter, on all diseases as above, and that the medicines, the same as used in the Institution, prepared to surt each individual case, Inhaling Vapors, Medical Inhalers, &c., &c., will be forwarded by express to any part of the United States or the Canadas. TERMS—My terms of treatment by letterlaw as follows, viz: $12 per month for each patient, which will include nedicine sufficient for one month's use; also, Inhaling Vapor, and an Inhaling Apparatus. Payment as follows: $6 to be paid to Express Agent on receipt of he box of Medicine, and the balance $6 at the existing satisfied with the treatment. Patients, by viving a full history of their case, and their s mpoms in full, can be treated as well by letter as by versonal examination. Patients availing themselves of Dr. Jarrett's treatment may rely upon immediate and permanent relief, as he seldom has to treat a case ver thirty days. Letters for advice promptly anwered. To the Medical Profession.

HAVING had for my object the preparation of a remedy that would be beneficial in all cases where an external application is indicated, without being injurious in any, I have devoted a number of years to studying and experimenting. After making thousands of experiments and consulting the best authors and most scientific chemists and physicians of the day. I have at length succeeded in making a whost studies its combination. Every intelligent Physician and Druggists will see at a glance, from the analysis given below, that it is composed of the very best remedies for external use in the Materia Medica.

This is not a Secret Remedy:

Every person who can read may know its composi-tion; its effects are also well known. One hundred thousand Bottles made according to this prescription have been sold and used. The result in every case was always uniform and satisfactory. Read the ana-lysis made by one of the most popular and scientific Chemists in the United States.

As the composition of the above preparation is no longer a secret, I have no hesitancy in stating that it is a safe and efficacious external remedy for the disease in which it is recommended.

Respectfully, C. W. WRIGHT.

Hundreds of physicians use and prescribe Porter's Oriental Life Liniment. believing it to be the best remedy for that class of diseases in which it is recommended. They know its composition and prescribe it with as much certainty, as to its effects, as they do any other remedy.
